

Creating a Business
Management System
Framework for Aviation,
Space and Defense
Organizations.

...making excellence a habit.™

BSI's services and solutions, coupled with decades of sector expertise, enable organizations in the Aviation, Space, and Defense industry to become more trusted, robust, secure, responsible, innovative, agile, and resilient.

With our training, assessment, and software solutions, you can secure and maintain compliance, while maximizing the agility and efficiency of your management system.

BSI's value-driven sector approach will help you create a holistic Business Management System.

Continuous improvement requires a robust framework.

The new structure governing international standards defines the approach to creating a more effective management system. Weaving flowdown requirements and best practices across the entire organization breaks down silos, and drives value and excellence.

- With quality as the foundation for OEM suppliers, adding ISO 14001 for Environmental Management decreases the organization's impact on the environment and maximizes its sustainability.
- Incorporating the Occupational Health and Safety Standard, ISO 45001, has been proven to address "human factors" that can impact the production and delivery of a quality product.
- Wrapping Business Continuity Management, ISO 22301, around the organization creates a more resilient operation.

By addressing different business challenges through an integrated approach, an organization can drive greater performance and maximize efficiencies.
